AbSec

NSW Child, Family & Community
Peak Aboriginal Corporation

AbSec is the peak organisation advocating for the rights, safety, and wellbeing of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children, young people, families, and communities in New South Wales.

As an Aboriginal-led organisation, we champion self-determination and work towards a child and family system that is culturally safe, community-driven, and responsive to the needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

AbSec leads policy reform, strengthens the capacity of Aboriginal Community-Controlled Organisations (ACCOs), and ensures that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and young people remain connected to family, community, and culture. We are a key member of the NSW Coalition of Aboriginal Peak Organisations (NSW CAPO) and the primary organisation responsible for Target 12 under Closing the Gap.

Through advocacy, research, and sector leadership, AbSec works to address the disproportionate representation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children in out-of-home care and promote holistic, community-led approaches to child and family wellbeing. Our commitment is to ensuring that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and young people grow up strong in culture, identity, and connection.

Our vision is that all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and young people are looked after in safe, thriving Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander families and communities, raised strong in spirit and identity, with every opportunity for lifelong wellbeing and connection to culture, and surrounded by holistic supports.

In working towards this vision, we are guided by these principles:

- Acknowledging and respecting the diversity and knowledge of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.
- Acting with professionalism and integrity in striving for quality, culturally responsive services and supports for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander families and communities.
- Underpinning the rights of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to develop our own processes and systems for our communities, particularly in meeting the needs of our children, young people, families and carers.
- Being holistic, integrated and solutions-focused through Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander control in delivering outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children, young people, families and communities.
- Committing to a future that empowers Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander families and communities, representing our communities, and the agencies there to serve them, with transparency and drive.

Introduction

“Place-based partnership providing a seat at the table for shared decision-making, it’s our ‘YES’ voice”

This Deadly Practice case study focuses on the very first place-based partnership agreement in Australia as part of the National Agreement on Closing the Gap ('National Agreement') Priority Reform 1 – Formal Partnerships and Shared Decision Making. This took place on Gomeroi / Kamaroi Country with the Tamworth Coalition of Aboriginal Community-Controlled Organisations (TACCO) and the Tamworth Regional Council (TRC).

On 9 May 2025, the partnership between TACCO and TRC was formalised under the Mara Ngali Partnership Agreement. "Mara Ngali" means "our two hands" in the Gomeroi language. The symbolism emphasises two-way working, as a collective effort and unity between the local Aboriginal community and local government.

Establishment of TACCO

In late 2021, State and Territory Governments, and jurisdictional peak organisations reached out to communities across Australia to gauge interest in a Closing the Gap local place-based partnership. Of the identified communities, the Joint Council formally endorsed six place-based partnership locations – one in each State or Territory. Tamworth was chosen as the NSW site.

TACCO comprises five established Aboriginal Community-Controlled Organisations (ACCOs). They signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) in June 2024 committing to supporting and fostering the social, economic and cultural wellbeing of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in the Tamworth Local Government Area (LGA).

The five ACCOs that make up TACCO are:

- Tamworth Aboriginal Medical Service-Aboriginal Corporation (TAMS-AC) (tams.org.au). TAMS-AC was established in the early 1970s and offers culturally appropriate primary healthcare services to Aboriginal people in Tamworth and surrounding regions. This includes bulk-billed medical services designed to enhance health outcomes for Aboriginal individuals and families of the Tamworth region.
- Tamworth Local Aboriginal Lands Council (TLALC), established in 1984. TLALC works to protect the heritage, preserve the culture and advance the best interests of its members and the broader Aboriginal community. By proactively creating opportunities and fostering pride, self-esteem and respect, TLALC contributes to sustainability for present and future generations. Utilising the assets of land, people and culture, TLALC plays a direct role in supporting the wellbeing and empowerment of Tamworth's Aboriginal community.
- Birrelee Multifunctional Aboriginal Children's Service-Aboriginal Corporation (Birrelee MACS). Birrelee MACS started in the backyards of community members homes in the early 1970s, with the Childcare Centre on Macgregor Street in West Tamworth being built in 1986. Birrelee MACS provides a culturally safe and enriched early education for children aged 0 to 5 years. As an organisation, they provide a space that encourages learning and development and reflects and strengthens Aboriginal identity within their Tamworth community. Through a holistic approach, Birrelee integrates early childhood, health and family services, aiming to enhance the overall health, wellbeing and quality of life for Aboriginal children and families.
- Burrn Dalai Aboriginal Corporation, also known as Tamworth and Armidale Aboriginal Children's Service (TAACS). TAACS works to create a secure, nurturing space that promotes cultural strength, family ties, and a sense of belonging for Aboriginal children and young people. Supporting birth or foster families to meet each child's unique needs, TAACS addresses physical, social, emotional, educational and cultural requirements of children and families at risk of or engaged across the child protection continuum including out-of-home care. Their goal is to keep children connected to their families, communities, and Country, while minimising foster care duration, preserving family bonds and empowering Aboriginal communities.
- Tamworth Aboriginal Education Consultative Group (Tamworth AECG). Tamworth AECG works to increase opportunities for the local Aboriginal community by promoting cultural awareness and fostering educational success. The AECG collaborates with schools, families and communities to ensure equitable access to quality education. By advocating for inclusive policies, culturally responsive curricula, and supporting Aboriginal students, the Tamworth AECG improves educational outcomes and empowers the Aboriginal community in the Tamworth region.

In July 2022, Tamworth Regional Councillor Marc Sutherland, one of the first Gomeroi people elected on Council, moved a motion for Tamworth Regional Council to commit the necessary resources to develop a comprehensive Closing the Gap Strategy and Implementation Plan. Councillor Sutherland was clear that the Strategy and Implementation Plan must align with the National Strategy to overcome inequalities between Aboriginal and non-Indigenous Australians.

As the level of government closest to the people, local government has an essential role to play partnering with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to address the priorities of the National Agreement at the local and regional level. This commitment was reinforced at its meeting in February 2025 where the Tamworth Regional Council resolved to endorse the signing of a formal partnership with TACCO. The formal signing ceremony of the Mara Ngali agreement took place at Tamworth Regional Botanic Gardens on 9 May 2025.

What are Place-Based Partnerships and what is TACCO's role?

Place-based partnerships are a commitment under Priority Reform 1 of the National Agreement. The partnerships involve government, Aboriginal representatives, and others (if agreed), that focus on the needs and priorities of the local area. These partnerships are community owned and driven.

Long term community development is one of the key underlying principles of the partnership. As a result, these are intended to be holistic, responsive to community aspirations and local priorities, and be sustainable.

TACCO brings together Aboriginal organisations in the Tamworth region to work collectively toward a stronger, more self-determined future for its people. Their role is to:

- Bring People Together – TACCO connects Aboriginal organisations, leaders, and community members around a shared goal: better outcomes for Aboriginal people in our region.
- Collaborate and Connect – TACCO proudly works as a collaborator and connector, bringing people, organisations and partners together in ways that honour cultural knowledge and community leadership. While they recognise the diversity of voices across the community, TACCO's strength lies in creating respectful spaces for these voices to come together, build relationships, and lead shared solutions.
- Lead in Closing the Gap – Being the first local government partnership of this kind gives momentum and potential to influence practice in other jurisdictions.
- Support and Share Knowledge – TACCO offers trusted advice and cultural insight to influence policies, programs, and planning that affect Aboriginal people, ensuring decisions reflect community priorities.
- Speak Up – TACCO is a united, representative voice for the community, advocating strongly and respectfully for the changes their people want and need.
- Keep Watch – TACCO helps monitor how policies and programs are delivered, calling for transparency, holding systems accountable and making sure community voices continue to guide the way forward.

TACCO's strength lies in their 'ability to bring people together, not stand in their way—because real change happens when we work alongside one another, with community at the centre and culture guiding us'.

TACCO Community Development Plan (July 2025)

As part of the place-based partnership, TACCO developed a Community Development Plan (CDP). The CDP guides the priorities for the Tamworth Aboriginal community and its region. The purpose of the Plan is to identify and set out clear actions that aim to improve the overall health and wellbeing of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people living and working in the Tamworth Local Government Area and to provide opportunities for equal access to services and foundational supports that encourage and support cultural identity. The CDP was developed following community consultation and endorsed by TACCO in July 2025. The CDP contains TACCOs' vision: "looking 50 years ahead, is one of hope, real change, and celebration – a future our children and their children can embrace."

This vision is guided by five key focus areas:

1. Strengthening Partnerships.
2. Enhance Decision Making.
3. Capacity Building.
4. Cultural Understanding Principles; and
5. Living on Country; Connection, Care, Economy.

Since TACCO's establishment earlier in 2024, TACCO has already achieved measurable success in translating community-identified priorities into tangible outcomes. Guided by the Tamworth Aboriginal community, TACCO has facilitated collaborative partnerships that directly address critical service gaps and systemic barriers affecting Aboriginal people in the Tamworth region.

Key Achievements

Maarumalda-y Project: Addressing Youth Health Crisis

One of TACCO's most significant achievements has been securing funding for the Maarumalda-y Project, a direct response to community concerns raised through TACCO's Birrelee MACS and Tamworth Aboriginal Medical Services Aboriginal Corporation.

The Challenge:

Aboriginal young people in Tamworth were facing a 12-month waiting time for occupational therapy services, a barrier that delayed critical developmental support and early intervention for young people.

The Solution:

Through collaborative advocacy involving TACCO, Birrelee MACS, and Tamworth Aboriginal Medical Services Aboriginal Corporation, funding was secured to employ a dedicated Occupational Therapist for Aboriginal youth. This position directly targets the waitlist crisis and ensures culturally safe, timely access to essential therapeutic services.

Community Impact:

Maarumalda-y will reduce wait times for Aboriginal youth requiring occupational therapy. In providing earlier, culturally responsive support tailored to Aboriginal young people this will contribute to their long-term developmental and educational outcomes. This will strengthen partnerships between health, community and multi-agency services.

Yilaan.gaal Dhina (Fresh Footprints): Justice and Youth Diversion

TACCO has played a role in endorsing and supporting Yilaan.gaal Dhina (Fresh Footprints), a project developed by the Tamworth Justice Collaborative, and led by TACCO member Tamworth Local Aboriginal Land Council.

Project Overview:

Yilaan.gaal Dhina is a community-led approach to youth justice diversion, grounded in Aboriginal cultural values. It is designed to provide intensive support for young Aboriginal people at risk of becoming entrenched in the justice system.

TACCO's role:

TACCO's endorsement of the pilot project provided legitimacy and an avenue to raise community awareness and acceptance. By providing formal support, TACCO ensured that:

- Aboriginal voices were included in the initiative's governance structure;
- Local knowledge was integrated into the project's design and direction; and
- The project was aligned with TACCO's broader community development priorities.

Significance:

This endorsement reflects TACCO's commitment to addressing the over-representation of Aboriginal young people in the justice system through prevention, diversion, and culturally responsive alternatives to incarceration. It also highlights TACCO's role as a key community body that helps connect and align efforts across local services and sectors.

Gabi Yarns – Black Coffee: Aboriginal Business Networking

In direct response to feedback from Aboriginal business owners, TACCO has supported the establishment of Gabi Yarns – Black Coffee, a monthly networking event designed to strengthen Aboriginal economic participation and business development in the Tamworth region.

Community-Led Design:

The initiative emerged from conversations with Aboriginal entrepreneurs and business owners who identified isolation, limited networking opportunities, and lack of culturally safe business support as barriers to growth and sustainability.

Partnership Model:

Gabi Yarns – Black Coffee is backed by a collaborative partnership including Regional Aboriginal Partnerships and Outcomes (NSW Government), local nonprofit organisations and TACCO, as community anchor and facilitator.

Purpose and Impact:

Through this monthly event, Aboriginal business owners connect in a culturally safe space to build peer support networks, share knowledge and opportunities, access government programs and mentorship, and strengthen collective advocacy for economic development.

Outcomes Framework: From Community Voice to Community Action

These achievements illustrate TACCO's effectiveness in:

- Listening deeply to community concerns and service gaps
- Facilitating partnerships across government, health, justice, community, and business sectors
- Advocating strategically for funding and policy responses
- Endorsing and legitimising community-led initiatives
- Translating priorities from the Community Development Plan into funded, actionable projects; and
- Creating culturally safe spaces for connection, collaboration, and economic participation.

These outcomes demonstrate that TACCO is not simply a consultative body, but it is an active agent of change. TACCO is ensuring that Aboriginal community priorities drive local service design, funding allocation, and collaborative action in the Tamworth region.

Looking Forward

The success of the Maarumalda-y Project, Yilaan.gaal Dhina pilot, and Gabi Yarns – Black Coffee establishes a strong foundation for future community-led initiatives. The TACCO model offers a replicable framework for addressing other priority areas identified in the CDP. These include:

- To deliver measurable change in local Aboriginal outcomes in Tamworth (health, education, employment, housing, etc) by embedding the 17 targets in local planning and services
- To build capacity in the local ACCO sector, enabling further growth of Aboriginal-controlled service delivery
- To strengthen data-driven decision-making, enabling local monitoring and evaluation of outcomes, and thereby increase transparency and accountability
- To create a replicable model: Tamworth's approach can serve as a blueprint for other LGAs and regions seeking to deliver Closing the Gap in a place-based manner; and
- To deepen cultural recognition and truth telling in local government practice (e.g., cultural capability of TRC services).

Challenges to overcome

As TACCO is one of the first place-based partnerships of its kind, to make the most of the opportunities under Closing the Gap, the partnership also navigate challenges. As with many policy-commitments, the translation from agreement to real, on-the-ground outcomes can lag. The agreement is not binding and will depend on sustained commitment, resources, and capacity.

- Resource and capacity constraints: Both TACCO and TRC will need sufficient resources (funding, staff, capability) to deliver the Implementation Plan effectively.
- Data and accountability: Ensuring that data is collected, shared, analysed and used locally—and that progress is transparent and actionable—is a complex challenge.
- Avoiding tokenism: Ensuring the partnership is more than symbolic, and that Aboriginal decision-making is authentically shared (not just consultative) is vital.
- Sustaining momentum: Initial enthusiasm can wane; embedding the partnership into structural processes, budgets and long-term planning is necessary to produce generational change.

Conclusion

Mara Ngali: A Foundation for the Future

T.A.C.C.O

Tamworth Coalition of Aboriginal
Community Controlled Organisations

The formal Partnership Agreement between TACCO and Tamworth Regional Council, known as Mara Ngali, represents a foundational milestone in Aboriginal self-determination and collaborative governance in the Tamworth region. While still in its infancy, Mara Ngali embodies decades of relationship-building, advocacy, and community leadership by the five ACCOs that form TACCO.

The journey of Mara Ngali is just beginning, but its foundation is strong. Built on the legacy of decades of Aboriginal leadership and community advocacy, it provides a pathway forward, not only for Tamworth, but for communities across Australia seeking to embed Aboriginal voices, values, and governance in local decision-making.

This Deadly Practice case study, highlighting the partnership between Tamworth Regional Council and TACCO through the Mara Ngali agreement, represents a significant step forward in local implementation of the National Agreement on Closing the Gap.

By centring Aboriginal-led organisations, and by formalising the collaboration with local government, the model offers significant promise for a more effective, culturally appropriate, and locally responsive approach.
